IN REVERENT MEMORY

WE THE CLASS OF '46 DEDICATE

MRS. MARY ABRAS

this our year book to our friend and adviser, Mrs. Mary Abras. This action was taken by the Annual Staff as a group and without her knowledge or consent. Words cannot express the thanks due her for the time spent worrying and working with us. Her advice and friendship have been invaluable throughout our three years association with her as well as in the correlation of our year book and we wish to take this small way of expressing our heartfelt appreciation and sincere thanks.

"Gone is the builders temple,
Crumbled into the dust;
Fallen those stately arches,
Food for consuming rust,
But the temple the teacher builded,
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple
Is a child's immortal soul."

Every teacher builds his or her life into the lives of the pupils. As each day's sunshine adds new cells to the blade of grass or the mighty oak, so the deeds, hopes, and aspirations of each teacher are destowed in some measure upon each pupil. It is the fond hope of every teacher that each pupil will develop into a mighty living temple, indestructible and incorruptible. Pupils are the clay which the master teacher molds into the immortal.

As the seniors move on into new journeys it is the fond hope that occasionally they will look back and wave to those who have helped and guided them. Always in memory they will see a friendly hand waving them confidence anew, and if they will listen closely they will hear that cheering voice that will last while the ages roll, "There they go; God bless them."

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT I. PETERSON

As Members of the Senior Class of 1945-46 you are getting ready to become the graduates of June, 1946. If my count is right you will be the 48th class to be graduated from the Banning Union High School. Even as I write this, we who help in the administration of the school are preparing to register pupils for their classes of next year. Your places will be taken by the present juniors who in their turn will be succeeded by those who are now sophomores. Nothing could better illustrate the inexorability of the passage of time. You have had your day of brief authority and prestige. You are about to go forth into a world that will not react in quite the same way as your school world has done. This outside world will ask you for results. It will demand rather than invite. Whether you go to college or to a job or into a home you will be tested and tried on the basis of what you can do. And because you will be graduates of a high school much will be expected of you. We who have known you, fervently hope that you will do your utmost to prove to yourselves and to the world that you are worthy of being graduates of this, your high school.

WE THE SENIORS

with reluctant spirit come to the close of a period in our lives that can never be recaptured. We are the first class in five years to graduate in peace. Before us is a completely new world which is now supposedly at peace. It is up to us, the young men and women of this graduation class and of graduating classes all over the world, to watch over and keep the grand and glorious peace which we have gained. So with the knowledge we have gathered in our few years, we go forth with high hopes and earnest efforts to suceeed in our peace-filled world.

THE SOPHOMORES

started their very successful year with a dance given for the Freshmen on October 12. They sponsored another dance on February 15, and one on April 26. The greatest event of the year was the Talent Parade. Every year the Class presents this review, only in the past it was known as the Hi-Jinx. Any student may participate in the Parade, but it is under the supervision of the Sophomores and the class adviser, Mrs. Olsen. The leaders of the first semester were: President, Glenn Malcolm; Vice-President, Jack Buchanan; Secretary, Elizabeth Gromer; Treasurer, Gloria James; Yell Leader, Jessie Johnston. The officers chosen for the second semester were as follows: President, Norbert Ornelas; Vice-President, Jack Buchanan; Secretary, Mary Jo Moore; Treasurer, Barbara Urton; Yell Leader, Frances Abercrombie; and Sergeant at Arms, Arden Ellington.

THE JUNIORS

had a busy year as usual. To begin with they provided refreshments at the football games and gave a very exciting football dance. As the year progressed they gave one of the best plays of the year, "Don't Take My Penny," which was an hilarious success. Their members participated in the operetta and other outstanding events. An excellent Junior-Senior banquet crowned graduation activities for the Seniors. The Juniors were governed by the following officers: First semester—President, Jimmy Smith; Secretary, Irene Love; Treasurer, Bill Bailiff; Sergeant at Arms, Bob Smith; Yell Leader, Edna Meston. Second semester—President, Bob Milton; Vice-President, Eddie Palmer; Secretary, Irene Love; Treasurer, Bill Bailiff; Sergeant at Arms, Bob Smith; Yell Leader, Lavon Jones.

SENIORS

started the years activities by initiating the Freshmen. Most of the Senior boys were very active in all major and minor sports. The Annual Staff could always be found working in Room 9. The Hoof Prints Staff edited its papers with great success. Near the end of the year the Senior play was presented with great success. The Junior-Senior Banquet was given by the Juniors and everyone enjoyed a wonderful evening. The last but greatly awaited events were the Baccalaureate and the Graduation of the Senior Class of '46.

BEING OF SOUND MIND

and body we, the Class of 1946, wish to leave to B.U.H.S. students our dearest possessions that we may show our love and devotion for this, our High School.

I, Dick Ackley, will my collection of phone numbers to anyone who thinks he can make better use of them than I did.

I, Doris Armstrong, will my hilarious laugh to Jeanne Wilson if she'll promise to use it.

I, Gene Brinton, will my ability to sleep in class to the night owls of the next senior class.

I, Doris Carter, will my hair dye to Shirley Hess in case she runs out.

I, Babs Chandler, will my position as Co-Editor of the Annual to Irene Love.

I. Bob Chute, will my prankish ways to Bob Armstrong so B.U.H.S. won't become too dull.

I, Marjean Colling, will my love of a good argument to the future debate teams.

I, Jo Combs, will my ambitions to future flyers of B.U.H.S.

I, Genevieve Corbitt, will my driving ability to anyone wanting excitement.

I, Betty Cox, will my school bus ride each morning to Evelyn Hall.

I, Mary Lou Davis, will my curly hair in rainy weather to Lois Rahn.

I. Helen Echols, will nothing to my sister, Leora, as she uses everything I have anyway.

I. Ernestina Estrada, will my long hair to Sally Arreola if she will promise not to cut it.

I. Gertrude Goldflam, will my cheerful spirit to Francis Duncan.

I. James Habeger, will my trumpet to Bob Milton.

I. Victor Hansen, will my crooning ability to Marcelino Palacios.

I. Ed Hemmerling, will my height to Jimmy Vander Hoof who can certainly use it.

I, Curtis Higgins, will my easy going ways to Fred Hillstrand.

I, Jack Holton, will my civilian clothing to Don Sheppard as I'll not be needing it for awhile.

I, Libby Johnston, will my habit of asking stupid questions to Shirlee Forsythe.

I, Colleen Jones, will my key to the bank to anyone who has a better brand of TNT.

I, Barbara Littleton, will my English interests to Kay Inderwiesche.

I, Carl Love, will my habit of vacationing from school to Don Wilson hoping it won't cause him too much trouble.

I, Janice McCann, will my shorthand accuracy to Lavon Jones.

I, Johnnie Malcolm, will my good naturedness to next year's student body president

I, Gene Marques, will my freckles to Vada Lancaster to add to her collection.

I, Artie Miller, will my carefree attitude to David Teberg.

I, Robert Nelson, will my attentive quietness in class to Eugene Morris so the teachers lives won't become too peaceful.

I, Gloria Newbold, will my curt tongue to Phyllis Miller.

I, Beulah Owen, will my tendency to blush to anyone who never gets flustered.

I, Angela Palacios, will my complete understanding of Civics to next year's bewildered students.

I, Bill Ritter, will my casanova ability to the fellows not going steady.

I, Colleen Sparks, will my studiousness to Ruth Meston.

I, Dee Stanfield, will my tennis luck to James Blain.

I, Jerry Strobridge, will my ability of talking constantly to Jim Smith as I know he'll take good care of it.

I, Bettie Sullivan, will my giggles to Evelyn Gromer hoping she can control them.

I, Ina Sullivan, will Andy's old address to Rosemary Miller.

I, Floyd Sutton, will my car to Roger Sutton just to keep it in the family.

I, Norma Tetzlaff, will the job of poster making for next year to Jessie Johnston.

I, Phyllis Urton, will all the fun I've had in my senior year to Ella Partin.

I, Dorothy Walker, will my beautiful simplicity to Edna Meston.

I, Delphina Yanez, will my collection of jokes to Mr. Peterson to use next year.

I, Ed Wilponen, will my dancing ability to Donald Otremba.

I, Phillip Ellis, will my musical talents to Roberta Habeger.

I, Frank Lamons, will my Civics book to Abraham Arreola.

THE SCHOLARSHIP

Society requires that a student must earn grades equivalent to ten points. An A counts three points, and a B one. A D grade in any class disqualifies. Each member receives a torch pin signifying his membership, which he wears as long as the grade points required are maintained. He may keep his pin permanently if he has proved himself for four semesters. If he is a member for six semesters, one of which is his Senior year, he receives a lamp pin at graduation, a gold seal on his diploma, and becomes a life member of the California Scholarship Federation.

THE GIRLS' LEAGUE

We, the girls of Banning Union High School, believe that we should:

B—Be earnest in purpose

A—Always modest in dress

N—Never irreverent in thought

N—Never untrue to a friend

I—In God always trustful

N—Never lacking in spirit

G—Gracious in manner

and

G—Good-hearted to all, so that

L—Life may be a rich and joyous experience

Mrs. Varney, Colleen Jones, Dorothy Walker, Mary Jo Moore, Irene Love, Phyllis Urton.

ACTIVITIES OF THE LEAGUE

were a New Girls' Party which featured novel "Hello" cards as its theme; the traditional assembly, presented on February 14, featuring the Yell leaders (Bill Ritter, Wayne Stanfield, and Clarence Stanfield); the Andrew Sisters (Eddie Palmer, Jim Cothran, and Frederick Hillstrand); Frank Sinatra (Lavon Jones); Drill Team (Bob Milton, David Teberg, Lavaga Scott, and Jack Buchanan); the Football Follies and the Basketball Ballet (girls from the first and third period physical education classes); the formal Spinsters' Dance held on April 15, and the Annual Mothers' Day Tea, on May 15.

Olga Arellano, Marilyn Miller, Ruth Anna Thompson, Mr. MacDonald, Fred Smith, Charleston Hierholzer, Donald Joe Payne.

CAMPUS CHARACTERS

All the students were very much pleased at the beginning of the year to hear of a new class in piano and beginning instruments. It was the first time in many years that a class of this kind had been formed. Under the able direction of Mr. Ralph MacDonald, five of the seven members became members of the orchestra at the end of the first semester.

GIRLS' CHORUS

The Girls Glee club started its very successful year under the direction of a new instructor, Mr. Ralph MacDonald. It provided excellent entertainment at two assemb'ies, one of which was the Christmas program. Before the Christmas vacation the girls sang for the Senior Woman's Club and the Kiwanis Club. They also entertained the Junior Woman's Club on April 27. The girls combined their harmonious voices with the mixed chorus to present the colorful operetta, "Crocodile Island."

The Senior Class was not satisfied with an ordinary play, and that is why they chose "Reserve Two for Murder," for it was certainly a complete departure from any other type ever presented. The action opened with a play-within-the-play, and while it began to unfold, the theatre was suddenly plunged into complete darkness and one of the actors was shot and killed by someone in the audience. From that point the plot gathered astonishing speed and took in its stride any number of weird developments —including a second murder by poison, a corpse that vanished and then made its reappearance in the rear of the darkened auditorium, and others. The mystery was finally unravelled by three detectives who came to see the performance.

FROSH KID PARTY

was the first party of the year. A kind invitation was presented to all Freshmen by the Seniors which stated that they should all be present or else. The boys dressed as girls; the girls as boys. The evening started off with a costume parade and was followed by an egg rolling contest. The other events included a ring relay race, a lemon meringue pie pushed vigorously into an unsuspecting Freshie's face, and a baby food eating contest. The new members of the faculty were obliged to sing "Sweet Adeline" for their initiation. The evening was concluded with a dance in the study hall.

We dedicate this portion of Our Annual to the Bronchos' 1945 E. R. C. L. Championship Football Team. Due to the undying efforts of Coach Zollars and the team work of the players the team came through a victorious season with eight wins, one tie, and no defeats. Of the boys we are justly proud.

The Broncho varsity thrilled many a grandstander with unexpected victories over longstanding champions of the R. C. L. The fellows came through the season with a fifty per cent standing in the league and the satisfaction of having beaten the previously undefeated champions of the but recently reunited league. We are proud of you fellows and we feel that you have set an example of vigor and sportsmanship for the future teams of Banning High.

THE BANNING B's,

although having one of the best teams in many years, were overwhelmed by almost every team in the reunited R. C. L. The team was exceptionally well formed and good in their team work, but the strength of the other league B teams was too much a match for the Banning boys.

THE C's AND D's

entered interscholastic competition this year for the first time since the beginning of the war. They were able to secure quite a number of games with the other schools in the league. Although they lacked practice they did well against their strong competitors.

with many returning lettermen from the past two and three years, were able to capture many a race in their dual and county meets. They were much improved over past years in their interscholastic competition.
The Broncho softballers batted their way through the most successful season in many years. This was due to a greater selection of players and the continual encouragement of Coach Zollars.

BLOCK "B" CONSISTS OF

every Banning High School boy who has made a letter in a major or minor sport, as specified by the school constitution, and is approved by the Letterman's Club. This organization was not as active this year as previously, but it had a great part in reaching some of the most important decisions in student government of Banning High. The membership of this organization has increased steadily during the '45-'46 sports season. This is due greatly to the continual encouragement by Coach Zollars for the boys to come out for sports. We only wish that in our small school we could have more organizations as outstanding and effective as the Block "B" is in running our school activities.

DRILL TEAM AND YELL LEADERS

Between halves, football fans at the home games were really surprized and thrilled when the drill teams, dressed in white skirts and blouses, green caps and boleros, marched on the field. These girls contributed immeasurably to the building of the grand B.U.H.S. school spirit. Three girls to whom much of the credit for Banning's success should be given are our yell leaders, Colleen Sparks, Doris Armstrong, and Francis Abercrombie. Not only did they participate in football but in all other league sports and truly helped lead Banning to a year of grand sportsmanship.

MAJORETTES AND FLAG GIRLS

This year something new was added to our entertainment between halves! Led onto the field by talented Sylvia Turk, a group of girls wearing white satin outfits with tall white hats and green tassels, tossing their batons into the air, as their billowy skirts blew in the wind, presented a thrilling scene. It was even more thrilling to see the six flag twirlers enter the field tossing their white satin flags high in the air and performing many acrobatic stunts at the same time. Many thanks and much appreciation goes to Mrs. Ruth Varney, our well loved instructor, for all these colorful performances.

The Girls' Athletic Association is the group which heads all the girls athletic activities of our school. To attain membership in this group a girl must earn twenty-five initial points and twenty-five points a semester thereafter. The points are earned by participating in such sports as tennis, deck tennis, baseball, and basketball. The highlights of the year were the two initiations and pot luck suppers, the G.A.A. assembly, and the interscholastic play day.

RACQUETEERS

Tennis ladders were formed this year in both boys' and girls' gym classes. The competition was stronger in interscholastic tennis because of the addition of two more schools to our league. As a consequence every afternoon the tennis courts overflowed with red faced boys and girls practicing harder drives and faster serves in preparation for the annual tennis tournament. Grand sportsmanship was the keynote of Banning's success.

BASKETS AND DRIVES

The fast and invigorating game of badminton was enthusiastically played on the numerous cold windy days when outside sports were not possible. Ladders were chosen in each gym class and the three at the top after play-offs were concluded were the class winners. Final play-offs declared Martha Partin to be the school winner.

The all American game of basketball was slighted a bit because of the poor weather, but the girls had glorious fun playing the game when the weather permitted. Games were arranged between gym classes after school hours when the weather was good.

Shooting: Martha Partin.

THE OLD CHAIR

When Mom announced she was going to sell her antique everyone was thunderstruck. Mom's antique was the pride and joy of her life. In good times, when Pa was working steady and the kids were all well, it was her pride. It was a symbol of the importance of the Lady of the House. She'd usher a neighbor friend into the parlor, seat her on the immitation leather "divanport," and even before she'd offer the guest a cup of tea, she'd call her attention to the small old chair.

The chair stood in a corner of its own. This was to prevent the kids from crawling on it and also to keep the grown-ups from sitting on it. She'd haul it out to the center of the room and place it exactly in front of the leather bead portieres, which she thought displayed it to advantage.

"This chair," Ma'd say, "is one that Abe Lincoln sat in."

If they were alone, the visitor was properly impressed; but if Pa happened to be home, the effect was ruined. He'd snort and say, "Well, judgin' from the looks of the seat, he sat in it once too often." Pa didn't have the feeling for antiques.

In bad times the chair was Ma's joy. No matter how short the money was, she was never really worried. For, as she said, if worst came to worst, they could sell the chair.

Pa would snort and say, "Yes, there must be about a quarter's worth of good fire wood in that chair."

Mom knew better. "It's plain to see,' she'd reply tartly, "that you don't know the value of nothing."

Before Mom was married she worked for rich old Mrs. Eastman. In fact you might almost say that Mrs. Eastman left her the chair, because after the old lady's death, when her nephews were disposing of her things, they gave Mom the chair.

Pop kicked a little after they were married, because he thought it spoiled the effect of their new mail-order furniture. But at last he consented.

When the children came, they, too, were warned of the chair. Even before they learned their prayers they were taught never, never to go near it. Once when the children were playing cops and robbers, Mike had accidentally jumped on the chair and Mom warmed his pants.

Mike was married now and living in California. He wrote and asked Mom and Pa to come and spend their last days there. Mom was anxious to go to that golden land of sunshine, and Pa was, too. The only thing that held them back was the fare. So Mom decided to sell the antique.

Mom never had any experiences with antique dealers, but she knew their sly ways. Mom wasn't going to be taken in that way. No, she'd do business with Jose, the most famous antique dealer in the whole country.

They wrote a letter telling of their business. In a few weeks they received an answer saying they were sending a representative to see the chair. Pa was home the day Mr. Jenkins came, and he let him in. Mom came in from the kitchen, taking her apron off as she came through the door, for she also wanted to impress Mr. Jenkins. Mom sat down on the "divanport" and let Pa take care of the business.

This was a mistake, because Pa didn't know enough to set it in front of the leather bead portieres, where it looked the best. Instead he left it in the stinkin' corner.

Mr. Jenkins gave it the barest glance. "Where is the chair in question?" he said.

"You're looking at it," said Pa.

An expression of disgust spread over Mr. Jenkins' face. "Do you mean," he gasped, "that I have come fifty miles to look at that?"

"What is it worth?" asked Pa, who was beginning to catch on.

Mr. Jenkins appeared quite angry. "It is worth about one dollar and fifty cents."

A slow grin of triumph started on Pa's face, and then he looked at Mom and stopped grinning.

Her face was gray, and her whole body seemed suddenly shrive'ed, as if a lifelong friend had betrayed her. The chair represented a taste of all things she never had had — wealth, security, genteelness, and all the time it had been false.

Pa turned his back to Mom and spoke to Mr. Jenkins in a loud voice. "You ain't fooling me for an instant," he said. "You dealers are all alike.

I know your ways. And just for that I won't sell you the chair."

"I assure you—," started Mr. Jenkins icily, and stopped as Mom covered her face with her hands. Perhaps Mr. Jenkins guessed then that this was no ordinary chair.

"I won't sell it," repeated Pa emphatically, "but what would it be worth? Would it bring, say five hundred?" His old eyes were pleading.

There was a long silence. Mr. Jenkins looked from Pa to Mom and around the room and back at Mom again. Then he drew himself up in fine dignity. "Very well," he said slowly, "since you won't let me have it anyway, I might as well tell you it is probably worth twice as much as that." He added in a low, significant tone that only Pa could hear, "to some people."

Mom straightened up, with the smile of a great lady. "I must make you a cup of tea," she said.

After that Pa wouldn't hear any talk of selling the chair. And when, later, Mike sent them tickets to California, they took the chair right along with them in the train. Pa took turns holding the chair, because he knew now that it was too valuable a piece ever to part with.

BABS CHANDLER

RAILROAD TRACKS

Shining rails can be seen piercing the horizon in every part of our country. They can be seen and appreciated by anyone who cares to observe them. But of what interest are they? They have no significance, no life. A railroad track merely consists of ties under steel rails, over which trains rush blindly with never a thought of the labor or time that was required to lay them.

Have you ever stood on an observation platform and watched the ties fade rapidly in the distance? It is similar to time, for hours and days travel quickly out of sight and never return again. I once watched a wrinkled old lady as she stood with tears in her faded eyes, and I am sure my sentiments were comparable to hers. I was thinking that once her aged eyes twinkled and once her high laced shoes were decorative slippers that glided over a smooth ball room floor. Her once expeditious hands now moved more deliberately. She was once held in an affectionate mother's arms, and she knew the true meaning of love and security. Now she was alone as she wavered there, observing the resemblance of her swiftly moving existence.

If tracks could speak, the sorrows and joys they could disclose would be unceasing. They could reveal endless accounts of horrified deaths and joyous reunions.

Without the glistening bars of steel, a train would be entirely helpless, just as we would be without a soul. When I see huge locomotives, I like to think of them as trains rushing over the track of life.

DOROTHY WALKER

SYMPTOMS

Do you have an itchy, irritated feeling? Do you feel like scratching your back or arm? Can't you keep still for a period of ten to fifteen minutes? Slowly run your hand over the irritated portion and see whether it is broken out in a red and white pimply rash. If so, my friend, I would like to tell you something. You have what is known as Poison Ivy.

Please do not be unduly alarmed at this prediction for there are at least four ways out. The first is to simply leave it alone and in five or six weeks it will have dried up and left your system. The second is to try to scratch it off, which is very pleasing at first application, but will soon lead you to much undesirable trouble. My third suggestion is to get to your druggist or physician and get any needed medicine and advice. So if you are lucky, in this way you may be cured in four or five weeks. My fourth advice is to take a large dose of arsenic, which is a strong poison, to counteract your irritation, and it will leave you without a care in the world. This is by far the quickest remedy.

But let us not worry, for this is no dread disease. You can not die with its infections unless slowly tortured to death by this itchy, irritated feeling.

You can only have the pleasure of having smallpox once, but not so with poison ivy. We can have it as many times as possible with all cases becoming more severe.

Penicillin and sulfa drugs are great aids to the so-called serious diseases. But for poison ivy we have a common medicine known as soap. But let us not worry; medical science will some day reach a solution, so until then let us continue on our daily itching way.
